

I signed up for XM radio to escape the filth that passes for entertainment on a majority of DC's local radio stations in the morning, and the disturbing news that needs to be announced on the others.

Either way, I can't get a traffic or weather report from local radio without exposing my children to things they're not ready for. And the reports themselves are nowhere near as comprehensive as XM's.

If the petitioners are afraid of losing listeners and advertising revenue, they have no one to blame but themselves.
